Paper Submission and Review:

Session organizers should collect, review and accept papers for their session. Session organizer should allocate at least 2 reviewers to each paper. When the two reviews are complete, Session Chair needs to make a decision, on the basis of the reviews, about whether the paper is accepted without change, rejected, or accepted subject to specified modifications.

Please note: We do not wish to accept poor papers merely to increase the size of the conference. Equally, we do not wish to reject good papers, or those that have the prospect of reaching a satisfactory standard through changes that can be carried out within the time available.

All accepted papers will be included in the IEEE CS and will also be indexed by EI. A selected number of the accepted papers will be invited for expanding and revising for possible inclusion in special issues for the following International Journal of Intelligent Information and Database Systems.

Financial support for session chairs:

If sessions are successfully (at least 8 papers), their organizers (1 organizer for 1 session) will get:
